

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A glue board assembly includes a first substrate member which has a first adhesive layer and a release member overlying the first adhesive layer. A second substrate member has a second adhesive layer. The second substrate member is disposed overlying the release member with the second adhesive layer in contact with the release layer. The release layer enables a user to peel the first and the second substrate members apart thereby exposing the adhesive layers for use in entrapping vermin.

c:\mydocs\application.AP225